

For Immediate Release:
October 31, 2013

Contact: Scott Hughes
(334) 271-7955

ADEM Announces Community Training Event on Environmental Issues

The Alabama Department of Environmental Management (ADEM) has partnered with the University of Alabama and the City of Tuscaloosa to provide an opportunity for local community members to receive training on how to obtain information related to environmental issues within their community. ADEM has made significant strides in making environmental information available via their website. The training event will highlight topics such as how to file an environmental complaint electronically and how to access information about environmental activities within local communities. Local citizens that are interested in environmental issues are invited to attend along with elected officials, students, faculty, and other guests.

WHAT: Training on Environmental Issues Within Local Communities

WHO: Alabama Department of Environmental Management
University of Alabama
City of Tuscaloosa

WHEN: Thursday, November 7 from 6:00 p.m. --- 7:30 p.m.

WHERE: Bryant Conference Center --- Lackey Room
University of Alabama Campus
Tuscaloosa, Alabama

#

adem.alabama.gov